Apple E-commerce Clone | NextJS, Sanity, Tailwind CSS

October 2022

- Designed an apple website clone with the technologies along with best code practices that are followed by different companies
- Used NextJS as a front-end framework because it allows for building a hybrid application with server-side rendered pages as well as statically generated ones.
- Used sanity as the back-end to fetch data of the products section using API calls because it has Exceptional APIs and is a Headless CMS

Interests and Contributions

Cloud Computing | 30 days of Google Cloud

2021

- I discovered my interest in Cloud Computing when I completed the 30 days of Google Cloud program.
- Things that fascinated me the most were computing services including servers, networking, analytics, and intelligence—over the Internet (“the cloud”) to offer faster innovation.

Open-Source Contributions | Bitwarden, Authy, ReVanced, Microsoft Power-tools

Tester

- I am an experienced app tester and have worked on a variety of apps, both native and web-based. I have a keen eye for detail and enjoy finding bugs and errors in software.

Web Development

- I enjoy the challenges of learning new programming languages and technologies.
- I am interested in web development as a hobby because it is a creative outlet that allows me to build things that are useful and interesting to me.
